(b) if so, whether any concrete formula in this regard has been evolved;

(c) if so, the details thereof; and

(d) what is the extent to which the functioning of small scale industries has been improved?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF INDUSTRY (SHRI M. ARUNACHALAM) : (a) to (c) The role of Small Scale Sector in the development of economy of India has been fully recognised by the Govt. The development of small scale industries has been therefore receiving high priority in the programmes of industrial development of the country and increasing the flow of assistance to the sector has been one of the salient features of the policy of the Government.

The Industrial Policy of 1991 has laid stress on competitiveness, technology upgradation, modernisation and quality control. The role envisaged for the small scale sector in the liberalised industrial climate has been spelt out in the separate policy measures for promotion and strengthening of small, tiny and village industries sector laid in the Parliament on 6th August, 1991.

The Government is following a policy of reservation of items for exclusive manufacture to encourage the growth of the small scale sector. The Government has adopted a pragmatic policy of reviewing the items that has been reserved. Reservation and de-reserveation of items ii a continuous process and suitable action is taken whenever the situation so demands.

The Government have not laid down any policy which can be termed as 'Exit Policy' in respect of the small scale sector.

(d) As a result of an institutional frame work and active policy support provided by the Government, the small
